Mother Says Oswald Innocent

FORT WORTH (AP) — Mrs. Marguerite Oswald said Friday her son, Lee, may have become innocently involved in the assassination of President Kennedy because of panic. She maintained he had nothing to do with the shooting.

"I don't know exactly what happened," she told a news conference, "but it is possible that while he was in the Texas school book depository he may have panicked because he was a well known defector."

Then she said, "It was only logical for him to get a gun and protect himself."

Texas Drops State Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr announced Friday that he has called off a state court of inquiry into circumstances surrounding the assassination of President Kennedy.

The Texas state official, making the announcement from the Justice Department, said he acted in compliance with a suggestion by Chief Justice Earl Warren, who heads the commission appointed by President Johnson to conduct a similar inquiry.

Tippit Fund Up

DALLAS (AP) — Funds for the family of slain Dallas police officer J. D. Tippit soared past $175,000 Friday.

In Fort Worth, Mrs. Shirley Williamson said collections for the family of Mrs. Marina Oswald, Russian-born widow of accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, total about $7,700.

Johnson Honors JFK, Pope John

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson on Friday wrestled with problems centering around the Atlantic alliance and military spending and awarded the Medal of Freedom to John F. Kennedy as a "pioneer for peace."

Johnson made another unannounced posthumous award of the medal, the nation's highest civilian honor for peacetime service. It went to the late Pope John XXIII.

Taft To Seek Senate Seat

CLEVELAND (AP) — Republican Robert Taft Jr., declaring himself a candidate for the U.S. Senate Friday, said a national GOP ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater "would make it difficult" for his senatorial campaign in Ohio.

The congressman - at - large from Cincinnati, fourth generation of his family in Ohio politics, said he thinks Goldwater's chances for the GOP presidential nomination have been hurt by the assassination of President Kennedy.

Christmas Crack In Berlin Wall

BERLIN (AP) — Hopes were raised Friday night that West Berliners will be passed through the Communist wall to visit relatives and friends in Red-ruled East Berlin during a long Christmas season. East Berliners, sealed off by the wall, would have to stay on their side.

The Western hopes were based on a letter from the East German regime to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt offering to let the West Berliners in from Dec. 15 to Jan. 15. The West responded favorable.

U.S. Unemployed Jumps 500,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 500,000 additional jobless Americans swelled the nation's unemployed to nearly 4 million last month, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The unemployment increase to 3.9 million boosted the percentage of the work force without jobs from 5.5 to 5.9 per cent from October.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market topped Friday from the pinnacle of Thursday's all-time high.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 3.61 to 760.25. Volume contracted to 4.83 million shares from 5.19 million Thursday.

Church Council Asks Racial Justice

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Council of Churches Friday launched broad attack on every kind of racial, religious and economic discrimination. Its 40 million members were urged to give wholehearted support in a crusade for justice.

In a lengthy resolution, passed overwhelmingly after two hours of debate and amendments, delegates called upon the 31 church denominations comprising the council "to be willing to pay whatever price of unpopularity or sacrifice these acts (for racial justice) may entail."

Jerusalem Meeting

Meanwhile, Bishop Reuben H. Mueller, new president of the council, said a suggested meeting of Christian leaders in Jerusalem during the Jan. 4-6 visit of Pope Paul VI "would be good for the world."

Bishop Mueller of Indianapolis, presiding bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, commented on the proposal of Athenagora I, patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox Church in Istanbul.

Delegates also were told that Roman Catholics and Protestants in England, for the first time anywhere in the world, will begin using the same version of the bible next year.

Republicans Dispute 'National Guilt'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Millard L. Simpson, R-Wyo., charged Friday that "rightists and conservatives" are being blamed for President John F. Kennedy's assassination by "people who hope to gain political advantage from warping the uncontested truth."

"After nearly two weeks of national remonstrance," Simpson said, "it seems quite clear why the assault is continuing."

He also decried efforts to blame all of Dallas for the slaying, saying the city has no reason to don a mantle of guilt because some groups which have aligned themselves with extremist causes are found there."

General Guilt

As the Wyoming Republican spoke to the Senate, the House also denounced "efforts to make Americans generally feel guilty."

The committee of 36, which includes the party's leadership, declared: "Rather than setting

Did Oswald
Fire Rifle
At Walker?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy, reportedly told his wife he tried to kill Gen. Edwin A. Walker with a rifle shot eight months ago.

The bullet, fired through a window by an unseen sniper, narrowly missed the right-wing general in his Dallas, Texas, April 10. Walker was cut by flying glass splinters.

Government sources said Marina Oswald, Russian-born widow of the Marxist ex-Marine, has told federal agents that Oswald came home that night and boasted excitedly of his exploit.

Neither the FBI nor the Justice Department confirmed the story. But it was learned that the FBI has been investigating this offshoot from the long chain of circumstantial evidence tying Oswald, 24, to the sniper-slaying of Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22.

Bloodmobile
In S-burg
Monday

STROUDSBURG — Blood Donor Day will be held Monday at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The bloodmobile's visit was scheduled for Nov. 25, but was postponed because of the death of President John F. Kennedy.

The Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. and its six branches are sponsoring the visit and will donate six turkeys for Christmas.

The names of donors will be placed in a hat and at the conclusion of the drive six names will be drawn. Each of the six winners will be presented a turkey.

John Baymor, vice president at the bank, yesterday as many employees as possible without disrupting production.

The quota is 125 pints of blood.

ARA Okays $316,500 Loan For Camelback Ski Project

WASHINGTON — Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., announced jointly yesterday that a $316,500 industrial loan to Camelback Ski Corp., Stroudsburg, has been approved by the Area Redevelopment Administration.

The ARA loan will be used to aid Camelback in the purchase of land, construction of ski lifts and the installation of snow-making machinery.

It will also be used to aid the corporation in construction of a ski lodge, restaurant, ski school and sales office at the site near Tannersville.

Rep. Rooney issued this statement:

"I am delighted with the ARA approval of a loan to

Total cost of these facilities

Camelback. This winter sports facility can be of tremendous value in the over-all effort on the part of local communities and the many excellent resorts in the Monroe County area to make the Pocono Mountains the greatest year round vacation region in America.

"Sen. Clark and I have worked closely with local representatives of Camelback and the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce and Vacation Bureau in carrying the case for the ski area to ARA officials.

They are firmly convinced that this installation will have a highly beneficial effect on business and industry in the Pocono mountains."

Total cost of these facilities will be $591,500. First-Stroudsburg National Bank and the Area Redevelopment Administration are financing a major share of the cost with the bank investing $31,650 and ARA $284,850 in a participating loan.

Pocono Mountain Industries, Inc., will provide $39,150 and the applicant (Camelback) will furnish $215,850 as equity. Thirty hotels and other resorts in the Pocono Mountains region have pledged to support the new venture with their agreement to purchase a total of $35,760 in ski lift tickets from Camelback during the first two seasons.

The total cost of the ski development is expected to be about $700,000.

Officials of Camelback estimate that about 55 new jobs will be created at the peak of the first season of the ski lift's operation. An additional 40 new jobs are anticipated for the second season's operation, according to officials for the corporation.

Clark said he had been persuaded that "it would not be in the public interest" to get involved in a filibuster that might hold up the passage of bills the Senate leadership wants passed.

The Pennsylvanian agreed to a procedure for the more or less painless means of shelving the whole issue. Majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, D-Mont., obtained unanimous consent to adjourn the Senate until Monday instead of recessing.

Under Senate rules, the adjournment automatically washes out the motion to lay before the Senate a resolution which would have been the centerpiece of the rules row.

The resolution itself was non-controversial. It would create a special Senate-House committee to recommend improvements in the organization and operations of both chambers, but not to discuss their rules.

Clark, who wants rules changes, including some which would make it easier to choke off filibusters, had disclosed he would move to empower the committee to study the two chambers' rules. This promptly set off the Southern senators' plans to fight it.

Rooney Urges Strong Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON — Rep. Fred B. Rooney said yesterday that passage of a "strong, fair-minded civil rights bill is the most important matter confronting the Congress today."

Rep. Rooney announced that he "fully intends to sign the discharge petition" which would force the rights bill out of the House Committee on Civil Rights.

He will report the bill out in January, if the majority of his committee votes for doing so, this does not relieve individual congressmen of their responsibility to do whatever can be done to bring about the bill's early passage.

"President Johnson made it perfectly clear in his address to the joint session of the Congress that we have talked long enough about the rights of all American citizens. There is a time when talk becomes not only cheap, but degrading as well."

"Either we believe in a free democratic society or we do not. The time for acting is now."

"Although, historically, discharge petitions have seldom been successful, I intend to sign the petition on Monday."

"Even though Chairman Smith has assured fellow members that the bill will be reported out in January, the petition will be a powerful weapon and a symbol of majority concern for this issue if the committee delays bringing it to the floor during a reasonable time."

Rep. Rooney urged passage of the civil rights measure "not only as a tribute to a great American President, John F. Kennedy, but also as the most appropriate gift we could send the American people and our friends throughout the free world at this holiest of Christian seasons."

Scripture—Acts 9:10-25; II Corinthians 10-13.

After Paul had been blinded by his vision of Christ on the road to Damascus, the Lord sent a man named Ananias to lay his hands on the former Christian-persecutor and welcome him to the faith. Scales fell from his eyes and he began to preach Christ—Acts 10:22.

Later, detractors in Corinth made false claims of apostleship, accusing Paul of being changeable, rude in speech, traitorous and fraudulent. Paul wrote the second letter to the Corinthians to defend himself against these unfair charges of the impostors. —II Corinthians 10-13.

He asks if these other "apostles" have endured anything like what he has endured for the sake of his faith. He mentions his many hardships, including beatings with whips and rods, stoning, shipwrecks, hunger, anxiety and constant danger.—II Corinthians 12:1-6.

He also mentions special revelations given him, including an experience in which he was caught up into paradise for a glimpse of heaven itself. Thus he declares emphatically the apostolic authority given him.—II Corinthians 12:1-6.

Religion Today

Brother Or Father?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

"Hi, father," the sister said. "I'm not a father, I'm a brother," said Brother Joseph A. Pietrasante.

The sister looked perplexed and asked, "Could you explain the difference to me?"

He did. The sister smiled. "Thanks, father."

This somewhat dizzying exchange typifies the puzzlement that often exists today about Roman Catholic "brothers." Even well-versed church members sometimes are uncertain about the role.

"Many people haven't understood just what brothers are because it is only in recent years that they have become a major part of the church's apostolate in this country," said Brother Joseph.

"However, with their increasing numbers and educational activities, they're taking on a new look in the public's eyes. They're becoming more known and appreciated."

In the last two decades the number of brothers has nearly doubled in the United States, to the present total of about 12,000, the rate of growth far exceeding that of priests or nuns.

But what are brothers?

They are garbed like priests but aren't ordained clergymen. They don't administer church sacraments, but many become eminent teachers and theologians. They are laymen but also are committed to religious vocation.

They take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience and live in communal houses or monasteries. But most of them also carry on active work in the world at large. Priests have jurisdiction over church life; brothers live it.

"The priesthood is an office," says Brother Joseph. "The brotherhood is a way of life. Brothers make love of God and their neighbor their sole business."

Brother Joseph, 28, a vigorous, handsome, dark-haired man attached to St. Joseph Retreat House, Valatie, N.Y., is a director of vocations for the Brothers of the Holy Cross.

Established 128 years ago, it was the first teaching order of brothers in the country. Its membership, since 1945, has tripled—up from 400 to a total of 1,200.

In simple terms, brothers are male counterpart of better known orders of nuns and communities of sisters, which carry on similar work.

Besides their predominant teaching function, brothers also perform a variety of other work as printers, accountants, typists, engineers, farmers, cooks, researchers, laboratory technicians, nurses, tailors, librarians,

Attempts Made To Undermine Religion

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A spiritual underworld of religious apostasy is trying to undermine religious influence in America just as Nazism and communism did elsewhere, a church historian told the 31-member National Council of Churches on Monday.

The statement came from the Rev. Dr. Franklin H. Littell, professor of church history at Chicago Theological Seminary, at a session of the council's general assembly, in the second day of a week-long triennial meeting.

Dr. Littell told some 3,000 persons—representatives of the council's 38 million church members; alternates and consultants; and visitors including Jewish and Roman Catholic observers—that "widespread faithlessness and apostasy among baptised Christians has given tragic character to the church's struggle with totalitarian movements in the 20th century."

"In our own land," he said, "in the moment of truth put to us by the race issue, we face a crisis of unparalleled proportions."

He condemned what he termed dangerous "Christian hypophenates" such as "German Christians" or "progressive pastors" as "peddlers of 'cheap grace,'" and "promoters of the 'cheap identity' of anti-Semitism and anti-Catholicism."

"Those who urged in Hitler's reign that the function of the churches was to undergird 'das Deutsche Volkswesen' (the German way of life) have their counterparts in those who insist that our churches exist to stir up 'the American way of life' or 'the Southern way of life,' or 'the world way of life,'" he said.

Dr. Littell said that "a local church which withdraws the hand of fellowship from Christians of other races and peoples has blasphemed."

In verse 10 the accusation of Paul's weak bodily presence refers primarily to moral weakness in person, not necessarily physical weakness. It could hardly be said that one who endured as many hardships as did Paul was physically weak.

In 12:7-10, we do find evidence of some sort of bodily weakness in the famous "horn in the flesh" passage. What this was, we are not sure, although it is probably the same ailment referred to in Galatians 4:13.

The criticism, in 10:1; and 11:6, of Paul's speech means that it was unadorned. Eloquence was an important factor to most Greeks, as Socrates has pointed out with scorn. Paul was not a rhetorician, nor did he aim to be; he was not

Today's Lesson:

Christian Commendation

By N. Speer Jones

Paul's first letter to the Corinthians concerned chiefly the problems that church was having regarding such things as quarreling among themselves and sinning on the part of their members. His second letter is primarily a defense of himself against false charges leveled by other would-be leaders. Paul had to defend himself or see his great work come to nothing.

Since these detractors brought letters of commendation (3:1), they were apparently outsiders. They apparently represented Paul as being changeable and a traitor to his faith and country (11:22). They were also apparently mercenaries (11:7), and claimed to have superior authority (11:5).

The Chapter 10:3-6, we have a finely drawn analogy comparing Christian work with warfare; it points out the defiant nature of the ungodly, not even wishing to know God.

Paul's point in the next verse is to remind them that he is the one who has taught them about Christianity; without his teaching, they would have no way of judging a Christian.

In verse 10 the accusation of Paul's weak bodily presence refers primarily to moral weakness in person, not necessarily physical weakness.

He condemned what he termed dangerous "Christian hypophenates" such as "German Christians" or "progressive pastors" as "peddlers of 'cheap grace,'" and "promoters of the 'cheap identity' of anti-Semitism and anti-Catholicism."

The criticism, in 10:1; and 11:6, of Paul's speech means that it was unadorned. Eloquence was an important factor to most Greeks, as Socrates has pointed out with scorn. Paul was not a rhetorician, nor did he aim to be; he was not beaten with rods (11:25); was such a severe punishment that often a doctor was called upon to examine a victim prior to the beating to see if he might survive it. (See Acts 16:22.) The stoning took place at Lystra (Acts 14:19). Since this letter was written before the shipwreck of Acts 27, Paul was apparently shipwrecked at least three other times.

The danger of river crossings (26) was a very real one in those days, as it is even now in remote areas.

In the first part of Chapter 12, Paul mentions something never referred to elsewhere in the New Testament — his being given a glimpse of paradise. The lesson began with the account of Paul's direct apostolic authority (Acts 10:25); here is an even stronger reference, in his defense to the Corinthians.

Christmas Light

Almost every city and town has strung gay lighting decorations over Main St. transforming an otherwise drab scene into a warm gay spectacle that kindles the flame of good will in most hearts.

There is a strange feeling that overwhelms one at this time of year, a feeling that evaporates with the coming of New Year's Day. One would think that such a wonderful emotional experience such as Christmas would last the whole long, but for some strange reason doesn't! We go back into our self-centered ways all too soon.

There was a light in the sky

2,000 years ago that gave visual evidence of God's great love. Today that light is still burning in the hearts of Christians by faith. We have not been favored to see with our eyes the symbol of an eternal love, but we have been able to "see" with a spiritual eye, the light of the greatest story ever told.

Herein is a mystery. It is given for some to believe by faith alone, but for others it is as if they were made of stone, for they cannot believe. Those who constantly reject the word and fail to respond to the inner longing to worship will find their hearts hardened for all time. Just as Moses pleaded with Pharaoh and although God worked wonders through Moses, still Pharaoh would not believe. Then God caused Pharaoh's heart to be hardened against Him!

There will be a judgement, and on that day no one will be ignored! For those of us who have not as yet made our choice there is still time. God is still inviting. Do not tarry, for who can tell when the end may come?

The Christmas lights are burning all over the world, a time for rejoicing is at hand. Be sure that you know what you are rejoicing about.

Christmas 1963 is a time for decision. May the light of Christmas ever be in your with man. There will come a

Drennan School Director 22 Years

BUCK HILL FALLS — Monday, Dec. 2 is a day Harry J. Drennan of Buck Hill Falls will long remember with some misgivings but an overwhelming amount of pride.

On Dec. 2, Drennan's 22-year career as a school director in Barrett Township ended. Since 1941 he has dedicated his life to educational advancement in Barrett Township and Monroe County.

During a career which he terms "real rewarding," Drennan has held a number of positions on various boards that indicate he respects the created among his colleagues.

Former State Group Head
In 1960 he was the first and only county resident ever elected president of the Pennsylvania State School Directors Assn. He served on the state association from 1953 to 55 and again from 1957 to 61.

Also in 1960, he served as chairman of the northeastern regional state group of the National School Board Assn. He has been a member of the county school board for 19 years and its secretary for more than 15 years.

In 1956 when Barrett joined the Pocono Mountain Jointure, Drennan was elected as the joint school committee's first president, a post he held for two and one-half years. From the very beginning Drennan has served as chairman of the jointure's budget and finance committee. "And I never had a deficit budget," he said.

Real Estate Reassessment
The accomplishment that Drennan the most pride is the winning battle he waged to have the county's real estate reassessed.

"I was a failure at this in the beginning," he said, "because every one thought their taxes would be raised if assessments in the county were put on a uniform rate.

"Without the change in assessment none of the present school buildings would have been built. If it could have got-

For the past 44 years he has been the golf and winter sports area director at Buck Hill. "My job has been one thing that has helped me in school board business, allows me to devote time to school work."

"During the past 22 years I must have made hundreds of trips to Harrisburg on school business."

Frennan was born in Hempstead, L. I. and worked there as a part-time employee of the post office until 1919. That year he became ill and it was suggested he take a vacation for the summer.

He said he came to the Poconos without a job and no intention to stay. He was offered a job in the post office at the Inn and the next year was asked to take over the management of the golf course and winter sports.

Dec. 7, 1941 Holds Special Meaning To Area Couple

BUSHKILL — Many people around the world remember Dec. 7, 1941, but Mr. and Mrs. Roy Squires of East Stroudsburg RD 2 have a special reason to identify the date.

Andrew Squires, their first child, was born in the Queen's Hospital, Honolulu, Hawaii — the day the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

"Andy was born shortly after 6 p.m. on the day Pearl Harbor was attacked by the Japanese. It was a hectic day as I recall," Mrs. Josephine Squires said last night.

She continued, "In addition to Andy being born the doctors and nurses at the hospital did something they had never done before. When they took me into the delivery room they had to work under blackout conditions. Everything was blacked out."

"Saturday will be Andy's 22nd birthday. I know he doesn't remember the day as it happened, but I know he has certain feelings, other than birthday, about the day. He's working in an aircraft plant in Orangeville, Calif., is married and the father of two daughters," she concluded.

The elder Squires, now a welldriller, was a civil service employee working for the U.S. Army Engineers on an Army supply ship. He was employed as a fireman on a ship which was docked at the Hickham Field port.

"When the Japanese started their attack on the island I was aboard ship helping to load supplies for Wake Island.

Cancer And Cigarettes

Bigger and better statistics showing that smokers suffer death rates twice as high as non-smokers were reported this week to the American Medical Assn. by the American Cancer Society.

The cancer society is the strongest foe of smoking in America today. Its report on 422,094 men who answered questionnaires and 36,975 matched pairs (one smoker and one non-smoker of similar characteristics) will soon be followed by more formal and official evidence.

A long-awaited report by a special committee of unbiased scientists for Luther L. Terry, surgeon general of the United States, is now expected in January, 1964. It is believed that the report will be critical of cigarette smoking.

The double death rate of smokers was established by the cancer society's study of 36,975 matched pairs. During that study, 1,385 of the smokers died while 662 of the non-smokers died.

Lung cancer killed 110 of the smokers, 12 of the non-smokers. Emphysema, another lung disease, killed 15 smokers, but only one non-smoker.

It adds massive evidence to the already established fact of a statistical link between smoking and cancer, other lung diseases, and poorer health in general.

But the clinching argument, the direct medical and scientific proof of a cause and effect between smoking and cancer has not yet been made.

That will come next. The surgeon general's report is not expected to make this absolute medical connection.

But the American Medical Assn. this week approved a long-range study of smoking and health "to probe beyond statistical evidence."

This AMA study will include chemical, pathological, and clinical investigations and will also consider the physiological and psychological factors of the cigarette-smoking habit.

This medical study is necessary to put the stamp of complete fact and authenticity on the present widely-held belief that cigarette smoking is harmful to all human beings.

Comment Of The Day

Portland, Ore. (AP) — Automotive seat belts have been praised as lifesavers at the American Medical Association's clinical meeting here.

A study of 57 accidents that killed 79 persons showed roughly half of those killed could have survived if they had been using a seat belt or seat belt-shoulder strap combination.

The findings were reported by Dr. Paul W. Gikas, who made a study of more than a year with a University of Michigan colleague, Donald F. Huelke.

They were on call 24 hours a day so they could gather on-the-scene information in the Ann Arbor, Mich., areas.

Their report said there were no cases in which the seat belt inflicted the fatal injury.

Walter Lippmann

Foreign Policy Reappraisal Needed

By Walter Lippmann
In the preceding article, I talked about some of the difficulties at home and abroad which complicate President Johnson's intention to continue the policies of President Kennedy.

It is taking too simple a view of his problems to overlook the deadlock and standstill which prevail at home and abroad.

Although President Kennedy might have waited until he had been re-elected, he could not have put off indefinitely a serious reappraisal of many of his foreign policies.

The condition of affairs has changed tremendously since these policies were first conceived and formulated.

They were addressed to the world of the late 1940s and the 1950s when there were two, and only two, great powers. Now, there are several, and the two big nuclear powers are finding that in the outer world their control is weakening and their influence diminishing.

It will be necessary to reappraise the policies which come down from the time when the non-Communist world, and particularly the European part of it, looked to Washington for leadership because it depended wholly upon the United States for its defense against communism and for its recovery, from the war.

This abnormal relationship had to come to an end. It was the avowed purpose of our postwar policies to bring it to an end.

And though it is human to cling to a superior place, we must recognize that Europe has recovered and enjoys a freedom of action hitherto denied it. This is because the balance of power has been organized successfully to rule out great war.

By the end of the 1950's when the New Frontier was struggling to come into power, the abnormal preeminence of the United States had already begun to fade away. The phenomenon was then ascribed to the weakness of Eisenhower and not to the nature of things.

Foreign Policy

Reappraisal Needed

It was necessary at that time to prepare ourselves for giving up our former position of undisputed leadership. Insofar as our European policies have been working badly, it is not so much because General De Gaulle is spoiling them but because events have overtaken them.

General De Gaulle has not brought about the decline of NATO and the American-led Atlantic partnership and the primacy of the United States in all the underdeveloped continents.

General De Gaulle is pointing out the decline of an American leadership which was temporarily necessary but inherently abnormal — abnormal in regard to the national spirit of the Europeans, abnormal also in regard to the historic traditions of the Americans.

In my view, President Johnson will do well to begin with a confident acceptance of an accomplished and unavoidable fact — that our position in relation to Europe is no longer that of guardian and tutor.

From abjuring the pretension to superiority in world leadership will come, one may hope, the end of that eager-beaverism which has interfered with our serious thinking and has done nothing but irritate and destroy confidence.

We should accept the fact that since we are no longer needed or able to lead Europe, the time is over for hot-foot missions to Paris and London and Bonn and Rome to sell some one of our devices.

It is time to relax and wait considerately and receptively for proposals from Europe. It is most emphatically not the time for the new President to consider traveling abroad, for him to listen to the naive argument that, face to face with the European leaders and with sufficiently large crowds cheering him along, Europe will relapse once more into the dependent posture of the 1940s and the early 1950s.

The time before our elections is too short, the accumulated problems here at home are too many, to allow time or energy for the diversions

Oswald Called Not Insane But 'On Lunatic Fringe'

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald — accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy — was not insane, in the opinion of some psychiatrists.

But he could have been "one of those people on the lunatic fringe, the kind who doesn't have many strings to his bow in reacting to life's stresses. So it could have been that he had finally to shoot," one said.

The key secret as to what Oswald thought, how he felt, how he reacted to the world he had known for only 24 years, were buried with him. He died before he could be medically examined and studied, or before a court could pass verdict on his guilt or innocence.

For these reasons, most psychiatrists interviewed by The Associated Press asked not to be quoted in giving opinions about Oswald and his motives and personality.

Lunatic Fringe

"Judging from scraps of evidence, he was not insane as most people think of insanity," said one authority in Boston.

"Rather he was on the lunatic fringe, one of the twisted, distorted people who have only a limited way of reacting to stress. He can run away — as Oswald did in going off to Russia or resort to violence.

"The one thing a person of this type cannot tolerate is frustration and anxiety. From reports about Oswald's past, he had both.

There are certainly unstable personalities and characters who get carried away by all kinds of extremist appeals.

Some have more antisocial feelings than others, and can become involved in criminal acts."

Other psychiatrists said the murder Oswald was accused of could be the act of a paranoid, the person ridged by suspicion and hate, who twists situations, who feels persecuted.

Such a person, regarding himself as a self-appointed avenger, often does not really try to escape, but arranges almost certainly to be caught, one psychiatrist remarked. He seeks the role of martyr.

Fanatic Hatred

"Crimes of passion are perhaps different from those of the fanatic," said another specialist. "The fanatic feeds longer on hate and suspicion. By the record so far made public, Oswald appeared to be of that type. Yet he had his kindly, family side."

From the time he was a youngster, some friends of Oswald said, he was withdrawn and even seclusive. One quotes him as objecting to the criticism from a football coach and shouting back: "This is a free country. A man is supposed to be able to do what he wants to do."

"If Oswald was displaying odd behavior, it never came to the attention of persons whose business it was to try to help such individuals," said one prominent psychiatrist. "If there had been the right kind of facilities across the nation for aid on mental health problems, perhaps he could have been helped. It appears he needed help for his own good, and society's."

Murderers

Dr. Frederick Wertham of New York City divides murderers into five classifications — political terrorists, the killers of tyrants, fringe fanatics, the insane who are definitely under delusions, and "legalized" murderers for political reasons carried out by governments.

Chemists, hygienists and veterinarians test about 150,000 samples of meat and meat products every year. The biological testing laboratories are filled with thoroughly trained scientists who concentrate on the single objective of keeping the nation free from contaminated meat.

All meats — roasts, sausages, hams, canned meats, and frozen processed meats — have to pass the critical examinations of these guardians before they get the government stamp of approval. A sidious microscopic analysis is used to check the meats, the chemical additives, spices, and the actual processing before the finished product is sold.

Dallas Somber, But Girls Dance On

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — In the smart, sophisticated supper clubs, the somber aftermath of President John F. Kennedy's assassination still prevails. In other places, the atmosphere is brassy and noisy.

It will be false to say that a recognition of the change in our relative position is a reversal of isolationism. A reappraisal of our position involves no retreat from the task of maintaining the nuclear peace.

It means no withdrawal and no desertion of our friends. But it does mean a change in our role in power politics, let us say from woos to wood, from buyer to seller, from seeker to sought.

"That's when the official period of mourning ends," he said. "And that's when all the military around here will let loose. The town'll liven up plenty then."

At the honky-tonk level, it seems to have already reached that point. The bright lights focus on near-nude women as always.

"Now it seems there are still some of them, but mostly we have the convention people, the ones we regularly get."

"It seems to me we are getting some different kind of people when we opened again after being shut," said Joy. The club shut after the assassination and was closed when Ruby killed Oswald.

who knew it was Ruby's place and came out of curiosity. The kind of people who come to see what a place is like instead of seeing the show," she said.

$10 Billion Alliance Called 'Failure'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — From all over South America demands are building up on the United States to loosen the purse strings and speed up the operation of the Alliance for Progress.

If the $10 billion U.S. aid program is to overcome the failures of its first two years and realize the high hopes of its launching, the new administration in Washington will have to find some way to deal with these demands in the near future.

South America is caught up in a revolutionary wave of social, economic and political change keyed to industrial expansion and land reform. This is a crucial moment and perhaps a moment of great opportunity. Millions of people are looking for higher incomes and better living conditions. They want houses, schools, hospitals, roads, telephones—and hope for the future. Some are showing an interest in more stable governments and honest officials.

U. S. Policy

The Alliance for Progress is the spearhead of U.S. policy for Latin America in this restless age. It was designed to encourage the revolution, to support reform leaders, narrow the gap between rich and poor, and build a base for political stability.

So far the Alliance for Progress has meant little to the people of South America, however. Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Zavala Ortiz of Argentina said, in one widely typical remark, that it had failed to capture popular imagination.

Blame Americans

South American leaders put the burden of alliance shortcomings on Washington. But the program was set up as a partnership, and they have as much responsibility for its success as the government in Washington. They all say they like the purposes of the alliance. The only question is whether they can make it work.

The challenge to Latin statesmanship, however, is severe. Some countries have irresponsible if not corrupt governments. Some presidents are caught between powerful nationalist sentiments against the United States and their need for U.S. assistance. Some nations are so poor their leaders claim they have little money for development. They want the United States to put up a bigger share.

Kennedy Idea

The late President John F. Kennedy projected the alliance in 1961 as a 10-year, $10 billion U.S. aid program coupled to $90 billion worth of self-help and capital from other sources, including private investors. In the first two years the United States has committed loans and grants totaling $2.3 billion and paid out an estimated $1.8 billion.

The biggest recipient has been Brazil. Though it is South America's largest country the government has proved uncooperative with the United States. Under the Alliance for Progress, the United States is not supposed to pay out more than 20 per cent of aid costs. In Brazil the U.S. share has been running nearer 50 per cent.

Brazil An Example

To Latin American leaders Brazil gives evidence that the United States can be pressured by circumstances and political hostility into relaxing its rules. They have other criticisms. One is that the United States is more concerned with building immediate defenses against communism than with eradicating the basic conditions of misery and want that encourage communism.

Another criticism is that the United States uses its aid program as a means of enforcing a kind of colonialism in protection of U.S. business interests. That was the reaction to the congressional threat to cut off aid to Argentina over cancellation of U.S. oil contracts. The same applied to the threat to conflict with U.S. fishing fleets.

Six-Week Tour

These views on the problems and dangers confronting the United States and its Latin American allies are among general conclusions drawn from a six-weeks' tour of half a dozen South American countries and from interviews with five presidents.

The first thing a visitor to South America is told is that North Americans misunderstand the continent and its people. They think of it as a single huge country. The U.S. government, it is said, tends to cover the area, in spite of its diversity with a single over-all policy.

In spite of the Spanish language and Spanish traditions, no image of South America could be more misleading. Even the Spanish language and heritage are limited in unifying effects. The biggest Latin American country, Brazil, speaks Portuguese and is built upon Portuguese traditions. It is proud of its easygoing, rather carefree ways. Most of the population is a mixture of European, Negro and Indian ancestry.

The junta has now committed itself to a sweeping reform program, including the return to power of a freely elected government. It has no intention of handing the presidential palace back to civilian occupants until it has finished with their reform program, which may take two years or more.

Spanish Areas

The Spanish tradition runs most strongly in the Andean Mountain countries where the original conquistadores built their capital, what is now Lima, Peru. In these countries—including Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia and Colombia—the dominant sport is bullfighting, political differences easily develop into feuds, illiteracy is high because of the long suppressed Indian populations, and the gap between rich and poor is wide.

Yet there are characteristics in common among the South American countries, especially when seen from as far away as Washington. One is the carry-over of the feudal concept—now apparently fading—that governments exist for the benefit of the governors. This notion still seems strong in Brazil where the main purpose of politics is frequently personal advantage.

State Corruption

Corruption and irresponsibility are frequently among the charges leveled by a new Latin American government at its predecessor. Sometimes they are among the reasons given by military leaders for ousting civilian administration.

The practice of military seizures of power is another general Latin characteristic — one which will not be quickly abandoned.

The reasons for this were developed in two interviews with military leaders — Argentina's army commander Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía and the president and three members of the military junta ruling Ecuador.

Because he stood up for democracy during political crises in 1962, Onganía is more responsible than any other man for the fact that Argentina is ruled today by an elected civilian president, Dr. Arturo U. Illia. Onganía said, nevertheless, that "there are times that action of the formula he described as political success was at the opposite end of the spectrum from the 'politics as usual' policy Goulart seems to be following in Brazil. It may be taken hopefully as a measure of the change coming over South America that new presidents in both Argentina and Peru also spoke out in interviews about their hopes for solving basic national problems.

Congressmen 'Frustrated Errand Boys'

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Your congressman feels frustrated, tense, unappreciated, overworked and underpaid.

He is often cowed and silenced by his leaders in the House.

He is jealous of senators and the publicity they receive, and so is grimly determined not to take any guff off them.

His constituents make so many demands on his time that his home life can be a joke — or a tragedy.

Yet he is almost pathetically eager to hang on to his job.

Get Re-Elected

"The first duty," a frustrated, tense congressman has confessed, "is to get re-elected."

These views come from an unusual inside look at the house by Charles L. Clapp, formerly with the Brookings Institution but now with Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass.

Clapp got 36 representatives of both parties into roundtable discussion, talked with other congressmen and congressional helpers, and interviewed congressmen's wives.

Their observations are set forth in a book, "The Congress: Its Work As He Sees It," to be published in late December.

Here are some of the other things reported:

Many of those elected often arrive with foggy or erroneous ideas.

Committee Plums

Many don't realize how important a first-rate committee assignment can be.

Many are unaware that the beginner has two basic choices:

He can shoot off his mouth and get that publicity a politician craves, or he can work patiently, unspectacularly, to become an expert on his committee.

If he picks the first course, he won't endear himself to the big, elder wheels who run the show.

One congressman puts it bluntly: "The yappers just won't get to be leaders."

If he chooses the second, he adopts a philosophy as dreary as leftover oatmeal.

Sharks Hear You Struggling In The Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are up to your neck in ocean, and you want company, thrash around a while. You might soon be up to your neck in sharks.

Researchers reported Friday new evidence that sharks "hear" the low-pitched sounds of struggle in the water—and that this sound may carry over considerable distances.

The shark has been shown to have some "smelling" ability underwater, capable of sensing the fluids of wounded creatures.

But just how far away can a shark smell, since the fluids are paid by friends and politically minded organizations, but races in hotly contested urban districts can cost $75,000 or more, much higher than the salary for the two for its irksome.

A congressman makes $22,500 a year, but he often decides to maintain a home in his district and another here. He must make frequent trips back to jolly along his constituents. He has to contribute to an unending parade of charitable or political causes. He often is stuck with the tab when constituents drop by at mealtime.

But for a family man its the committees as they see fit, and they usually do."

Committee Rules

One member asked his chairman: under what rules do we operate?

"My rules," the chairman was said to have replied.

Any chairman is excellently placed to push legislation he wants, but he's even better situated to block bills he doesn't want.

African Unity, Power Urged

An AP Special Report

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — From this ancient land, a voice is calling on Africa to unite and become a world power.

The voice is that of Emperor Haile Selassie I, 71, ruler of Ethiopia for 33 years.

The bearded little monarch with the coal black eyes has challenged the African continent to its greatest task — to build unity in the face of the powerful, developed and rich outside world.

Most congressmen depend on those they trust when complicating bills are up for amendment. And this is how a legislator can slowly build power: By establishing himself as a man whose judgment can be trusted.

"All committee chairmen are despot," one congressman said. "Some of them are benevolent despots, as is the case of my chairman, but in any event they are despotic. They can run their fruit of his idea—the heads of state of independent Africa signed the charter of African unity in Addis Ababa and created the Organization of African Unity.

Although political and economic unity of the continent and its 50 million inhabitants is still a dream, the signers hope the nucleus of the future power has been created.

Although his achievements are not spectacular, the 20th century has been brought into the country's key cities and even some rural areas.

His rule has been challenged seriously only once. In December 1960 when he was in Brazil, a part of the imperial guard revolted and installed Crown Prince Merid Asfa Wossen briefly on the throne.

The bulk of the army and the air force remained loyal to the emperor, who rushed back and entered Addis Ababa in triumph acclaimed by the population.

Why Military Rule

In Quito, Ecuador, Rear Adm. Ramon Castro Jijon, president of the junta, was asked why military rule was necessary.

"We do not believe that such rule is necessary," Castro replied, "but sometimes it is inevitable."

He and his associates, two army generals and an air force colonel, ousted Carlos Julio Arosemena Monroy last July, saying his lax leadership had let communism gain a foothold in the countryside.

The junta has now committed itself to a sweeping reform program, including the return to power of a freely elected government. It has no intention of handing the presidential palace back to civilian occupants until it has finished with their reform program, which may take two years or more.

Communist Problem

Communism is to some degree a problem in every Latin American country. The decline of Castro's popularity does not mean that the more traditional threat of a Communist rise to power by subversion and conspiracy or by legal means — has been eliminated.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Now I've got a telephone which seems to mark another step in my rehabilitation. Actually, I have more than enough to meet my daily needs, which is all anybody can use at once anyway. Which is what I keep telling myself.

"There's no use crying over spilt milk" is another exasperating, if true, admonition and during my conscious, waking hours, I don't. Which doesn't mean that I don't wake in the night with tears for such non-essentials as Peter's fraternity pin or my Egbert medallion or Nancy's great-grandmother's Queen Victoria Jubilee coin. Even, for pity's sake, my own wedding dress.

You all insist on giving me credit for far more courage and gallantry than I possess — especially on a Friday night, when the pressure of a busy week slackens, the sins of omission and commission overlooked in a hectic race with time swell to un-natural size, and the car, of its own accord, turns toward what was home.

This is a night of sackcloth and ashes — Of apologizing for sending people up to Buck Hill to see the Wyeths that aren't there, for instance. It was all a misunderstanding. Actually, there are a lot of fine paintings from the permanent collection which have been placed on display in the newly-decorated East Room, but not even one Wyeth.

It's the night to be apologetic about the snail's pace at which I set about thanking people for so many kindnesses that I can't even count them. To be ashamed of my own feeble efforts on behalf of anybody else when I see, for instance, how many women were working so hard at the Mistletoe Ball at the Methodist Church last night, while I just enjoyed their chicken and waffles and hospitality.

To be satisfied with his own society, a man must give as well as take, and while I've been taking with both hands, I haven't given so much as a stocking for the Christmas project. But plenty of the rest of you have. I stopped in to see the display before they were taken to Allentown Hospital (and was amazed at the ingenuity with which the stockings had been made, decorated and filled, all within such strictly circumscribed limits).

This is a wonderful community, and maybe, if sometime during the weekend I can borrow a good deal from some of our Boy or Girl Scouts, I'll feel more worthy to be a member of it come Monday.

Treelighting Goes Taller Every Year

Newfoundland — One of the brightest Christmas programs in the area is the annual Christmas tree-lighting service held each year by the Green-Dreher Women's Club.

The public is welcome to attend the service, which this year will be held at the big Christmas tree in the Southern Wayne schoolyard on Tuesday, Dec. 10. Originally, this tree was planted with the thought that it would be the center of attraction each Christmas, but it grew to be so tall that the project of decorating it was a major one. However, this year, a volunteer has come forward, and the big tree will sparkle with decorations.

The tree-lighting will be at 9 p.m. This will be preceded by a club meeting at 8, when a skit, "Raggedy Ann's First Christmas," will be presented by Brownie Girl Scout Troop 232, directed by Phyllis Jones. Reception of new members, with Mrs. Edythe Gilpin officiating, will also take place.

After the tree lighting, at which the Rev. Denton Covert and the Rev. Larry Lindenmuth will be in charge, there will be singing of Christmas carols. Then the Women's Club members will return to the school for a Christmas party, exchange of gifts and refreshments served by Helen Feigel, Ethel Akers, Estella Christman, Katherine Miller, Frances VanBuskirk, Margaret Beehn, Louise Northup, Jane Gilpin, Sue Steiger, Iva Fitz, Helen Cron, Virginia Rohrbacker, Kay Reger and Loretta Evans.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Continuing with our spelling of Christmas, we might point out that the letter R also stands for RONSON, and the perfectly marvelous lighters made by this company for both men and women.

I is for IDEAS! And certainly there is no store anywhere that can offer a greater variety of interesting... intriguing... individual... incredibly irresistible ideas for Christmas gifts than can Wyckoff's. I is for icicles, to glow, twinkle, or ripple on your Christmas tree. The lights are so many and varied these days they actually seem to be a living, vital part of the Christmas celebration. If you doubt me, visit our Trim-a-Tree Shop on the second floor and see for yourself! This year's is the very finest Trim-a-Tree Shop we have ever had — more attractively delineated than before as a very complete "little store" devoted to dramatizing the significance of the season.

I is for IDEAS, the glossy paper-covered book issued at special seasons, containing pictures, poems, drawings, and stories — a book in two sizes at 1.00 and 2.00 that comes complete with envelope for mailing to a favorite child, a shunt, or just any friend who rates something more thoughtful than mere card. I is for Intimate, the Revlon fragrance so many women have selected as their own. There is one perfectly charming Intimate gift box in gold and white that would be prized by many girls of all ages. I'm sure, and it isn't too expensive either... it simply looks that way.

I is for IKORA — the lustrous silverplated holloware from Western Germany so attractively displayed in our International Gift Center. Ikora is two-toned and the contract is elegant — part of each piece is smooth and sleek; part appears textured, with markings not unlike moire ribbon. Any home would be proud of this silverplate, as you'll agree once you see it. I is for IRONSTONE, the heavy white tableware which comes in either a very simple style with a scroll edge as its only adornment, or with a raised design of grape clusters and leaves. I is for INDIANWARE — the carved furniture from East India or the unusual jewelry from our America Indians of the western United States.

Cookies Can Sweeten Day Of Adversity

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg — On Thanksgiving Day when my brother-in-law, Sonny, offered me a woodcock, I was as grateful as a child receiving a piece of candy. He took the frozen bag from the freezer and I put it in my basket so I wouldn't go home without it.

As we weren't eating home the next night, I put it in the freezer when I got home. On Saturday, with a sigh, I took it out in the morning and put it on my kitchen counter, wishing it were time for supper instead of breakfast. From the freezer I also took a pheasant to cook for Bill, and I had Billy's squirrel for him.

All afternoon I baked cookies, but my eyes kept wandering to the woodcock; you know how it is when you look forward to eating something special. Finally, at suppertime, I got out the wild rice to make the game dinner complete, took the pheasant out of the bag, and got the squirrel ready for browning. Then, I lovingly reached for the woodcock and as I began to take it out of the bag, was surprised that it seemed in pieces; you know how small a woodcock is. As I placed it on a plate I let out a scream so loud that Billy came running into the kitchen thinking I must have stabbed myself with a knife.

There, on the plate, instead of the woodcock I had been so hungrily awaiting for two days, was an assortment of hearts, gizzards, and livers. I went to the phone and when my sister answered I said very sarcastically, "Thanks for the woodcock!" as I was sure this was their idea of a joke! But, I judged them wrongly; Sonny had grabbed the wrong bag, and promised he would save the woodcock for me. Now that it's in print, tell better!

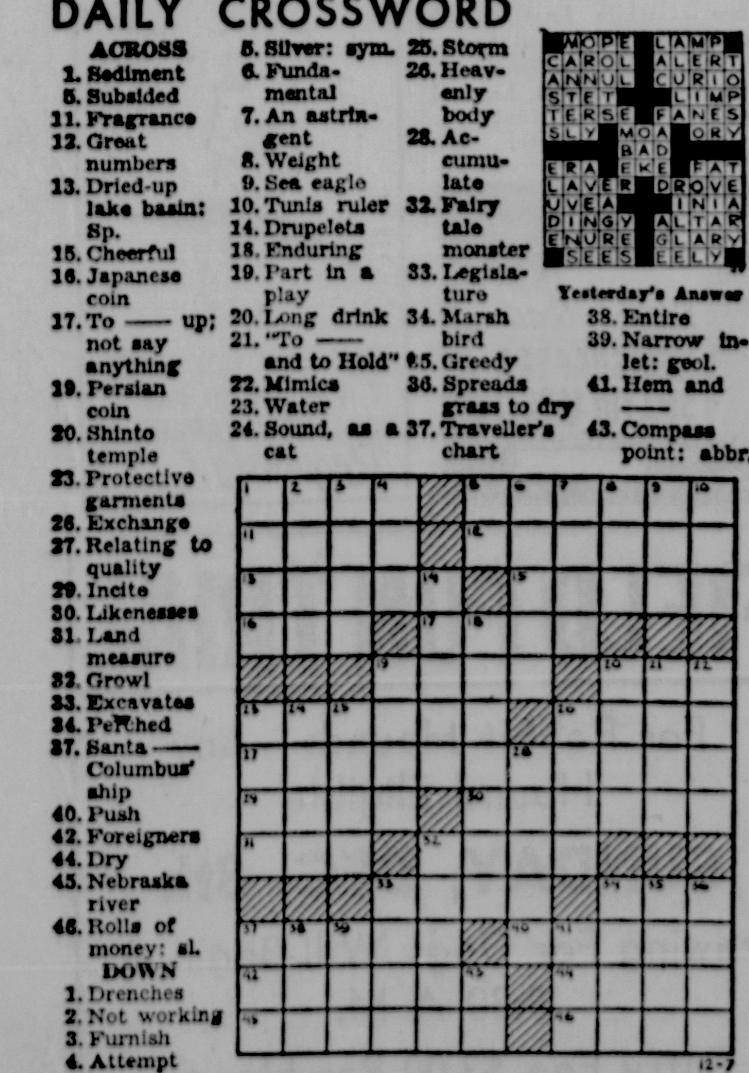

It's a good thing I made delicious cookies that afternoon to soothe my disappointment; not that my half of the pheasant wasn't good.

Maybe you've seen the recipe for these cookies in magazine ads. As they're Billy's favorite candy, I had to try them, and they are the kind you can eat until suddenly they're gone! They taste very much like the Toll House cookie.

Color Cookie
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon water
1 egg
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup M&M's plain chocolate candies
Blend shortening and sugars. Beat in vanilla, water, and egg. Sift remaining dry ingredients together and add to the sugar and egg mixture. Mix well. Stir in candy. Drop from teaspoon onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 for 10-12 minutes until golden brown. Makes about 3 dozen 2 1/2 inch cookies.

To make these colorful for Christmas, press additional M&Ms on top of the cookie. If you're not a snitcher and can resist eating the candies, a 5% oz. bag is enough for this recipe.

I have new neighbors, Ruth and Karl Schmeiding, from Toledo, Ohio, and as neighbors do, we exchanged food. After I took them over an apple pie, Mrs. Schmeiding brought me the most delicious cinnamon cookies I've ever eaten. Of course, I had to get the recipe as I knew you'd like to try them, too. They're big sugar cookies; they flatten from mincemeat. These are crumbly, but good.

Ruth's Cinnamon Cookies
1 cup shortening
1/2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
2 1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat thoroughly. Sift dry ingredients together and add to creamed mixture. Roll about 1 teaspoon of mixture in 2 tablespoons sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Bake 8 to 10 minutes in a 400 oven.

Have you ever frosted brownies? They're so good. Picture above are brownies iced with a peanut butter frosting made by adding 1/4 cup peanut butter to 1 1/2 cups sifted powdered sugar. Cream together and add 2 tablespoons light cream and beat well. Add a little more cream if necessary, for spreading consistency. Spread on cooled brownies.

Another bar cookie that's nice for Christmas is made with mincemeat. These are crumbly, but good.

Have you ever frosted brownies? They're so good. Picture above are brownies iced with a peanut butter frosting made by

1 1/2 cup sifted all purpose flour
Stir in 1 1/2 cups quick cooking rolled oats. Press half of mixture into a greased 7x11 pan. Spread with 2 cups mincemeat from jar. Press remaining oats mixture on top and bake in a 375 oven for 25 minutes. Cut into 12 bars and remove from pan at once.

Candied sweet potatoes are delicious when either orange juice or pineapple juice is added to the brown sugar and butter mixture. If orange juice is used, add a little of the grated orange rind as a pretty garnish.

Ever serve succotash, that old American favorite, in a cream sauce? Good sprinkled with lavishly buttered and toasted crumb. To prepare the crumb, use soft bread (crust removed) and brown in butter in a skillet.

Art Film On Creed Leads Into Discussion Meeting

Tannersville — Pastor Charles Adamo led opening devotions when the Lutheran Church Women of St. Paul's met at the church on Nov. 20. Betty Woodling conducted the offering service.

A thought-provoking film, done in modern art, was shown by "The Gift." After the film the members went into three groups for buzz sessions. Then a general discussion period was held and the film was shown again. There was the creed. During the first eight minutes that it was shown there was no narration, only music.

Cori Sebring presided at the business session. The minutes of the November meeting were read by Marolyn Sebring. Vera Walters presented a financial report.

Faith and Life chairman Evelyn Dodd spoke about the magazine, "Lutheran Women" and suggested sending it to friends and relatives as a Christmas gift.

Annabelle Pechatka, Christian Action chairman, thanked all persons who donated clothing for Lutheran World Relief. She reported that the donations had been delivered to the Eastern clothing center.

Members were reminded to bring their contributions for the Christmas stockings. The filled stockings were taken to the gathering in Easton on Thursday, December 5. Also taken to the Ingathering was a gift of money and a croquet set for St. Paul's LCW's foster child.

Christmas candles will be made in the near future and distributed to Sunday School members and to guests at the Counter.

Pierson High For Mounties

Slow-Starting S-burg Loses To Nazareth

NAZARETH — Slow-starting Stroud Union, failing to hit double figures until the final period, dropped a 53-43 decision to host Nazareth last night, putting the Mountaineers of Coach Wilmont Smith at a .500 mark at 1-1 for the young season.

Nazareth's Mike Lilly dumped in 10 field goals for 20 points to capture scoring honors for the game and pace the Blue Eagles to victory. Terry Hunt also aided the winners' cause with 12 points on five field goals and two foul throws.

For Stroud Union, veterans Dave Pierson sparked the attack with an 18-point production — 10 of which came from the foul line. Sophomore Skippy Kintz banged in 12 points for the Mounties on five field goals and two from the foul line.

The Blue Eagles hit in double figures for each period as Stroud Union was shooting with cold hands. Nazareth gained a 12 lead at the end of the first period, and then outpointed the Maroon and White in the second session by 17-9 for a half-time bulge of 29-18.

Start Too Late

Stroud Union continued to be erratic in the third quarter, hitting for only seven points while the Blue Eagles tallied 13. But the Mounties finally started to hit — albeit much too late — in the final frame when they ripped the cords for 18 points while holding Nazareth to 11.

The Mountaineers continued their fine showing from the foul line — just as they did in their opening game against Pocono Mountain — hitting on 17 of 23. But their inability to connect from the floor proved their downfall.

The Knights failed to outscore the Crusaders in any of the sessions but held them on all-even terms in the third quarter, 11-11, and in the fourth period, 14-14, after Notre Dame edged the Knights in the second session by 19-19.

High Scorer

Dave Turtzo was high scorer for the losers with 29 points on 11 field goals and seven foul flips. Ronnie Singer also reached double figures for the Knights with 11 points on four field goals and three from the foul line.

Pacing the Crusader attack were Doug Noakes with 13, Judd Biastico with 12, Lee Kelly with 11 and Danny Posidack with 10.

Those four boys pulled Notre Dame out in front at the very start and held the Knights by after that.

Although Penn Argyl's shooting from the foul line was little better than .500 (15 or 28) where they easily could have made up the difference, Notre Dame's average was much worse with only eight of 26 attempts.

PEN ARGYL — Coach Dick Merritt's Stroud Union men got their wrestling season off to a roaring start last night with an overwhelming 42-9 victory over visiting Slatington in Stroud's first appearance in Lehigh Valley League competition.

Losers only one match all night while drawing in two others, the Maroon and White took a commanding lead on three straight pins by Bob Miller, Dutch Grimm and John Chanaca after Frank Coco won by forfeit in the opening match.

Bolt Caught By Twosome

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Bert Weaver and Sandra Spuzich caught up Friday with a cold, miserable Tommy Bolt and partner in the second round of the $40,000 Scotch Mixed Golf Championships.

Weaver and his brunet partner, a professional for only two years, shot a six-under-par 66 over the 6,723-yard Harder Hall course for a 36-hole total of 136.

Bolt and Jo Ann Prentice, who shot a 64 Thursday over the Pinecrest Lakes course at nearby Avon Park, had a 72.

"I've ever spent on the golf day I've ever spent on the golf course," said Bolt. "I was cold and miserable. I'll have enough clothes on tomorrow — you watch."

Sam Snead and Shirley Englehorn had a 68 for a 36-hole total of 138, but Snead complained "I missed five putts running eight feet under and she missed three."

Their 138 was matched by Joe Campbell and Kathy Cornelius, who had a 67.
